

Death comes sooner in Appalachia. It comes much sooner in Eastern Kentucky

By Bill Estep

bestep@herald-leader.com

August 24, 2017 5:33 AM

The years of life Appalachian Kentucky residents lose to health maladies such as heart disease and cancer is 63 percent higher than the national average, according to a report released Thursday.

The news was not good in Eastern Kentucky and other parts of Appalachia on just about every indicator of health: heart disease deaths were 17 percent higher in Appalachia than the country as a whole; cancer deaths were 27 percent higher; stroke deaths were 14 percent higher; and the rate of deaths from poisoning, which mostly means from drug overdoses, was 37 percent higher.

Put all that together, and the years of potential life lost before age 75 — a measure of premature death — was 25 percent higher in Appalachia than in the U.S, the report found.

Read more here:

http://www.kentucky.com/news/state/article169037857.html?anf=TOP_STORIE...

Last updated on February 09, 2026.

Tags

Eastern Kentucky Appalachia

Print

Table of Contents

NEWS

News & publications

More News

6 Mar 2026

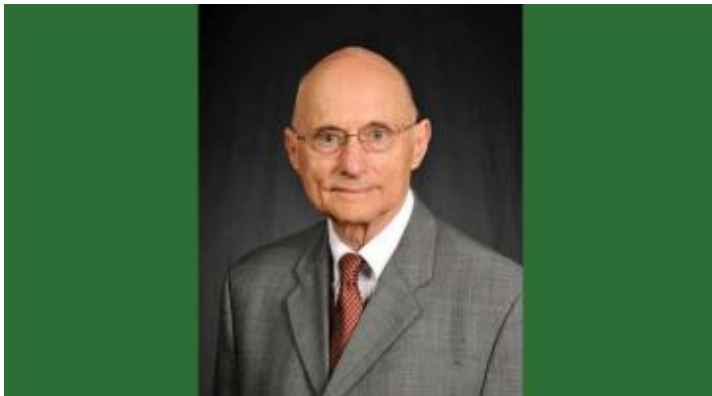

AppalReD Legal Aid offering free estate planning, title clearing clinics

(WYMT) -AppalReD Legal Aid is hosting free legal assistance clinics offering...

Continue Reading about AppalReD Legal Aid offering free estate planning, title clearing clinics

4 Mar 2026

KY lawyer John Rosenberg receives national honor for his commitment to justice

Excerpted from The Kentucky Lantern's February 23rd online edition.Kentucky...

Continue Reading about KY lawyer John Rosenberg receives national honor for his commitment to justice

16 Jan 2026

Disaster Preparedness Clinics

AppalReD is helping with the paperwork side of disaster preparedness during an...

Continue Reading about Disaster Preparedness Clinics

PDF downloaded from <https://www.ardfky.org/page/152/death-comes-sooner-appalachia-it-comes-much-sooner-eastern-kentucky>