

The Weather Outside is Frightful: Winter Weather Safety Tips

Winter weather is tough for everyone, but it can be especially hard for families with low incomes.

When the temperature drops, heating bills go up, and some people can't afford to keep their homes warm. Landlords may not provide tenants adequate heat. Others may face eviction for falling behind on rent or foreclosure due to increased financial strain from heating costs. The risk of house fires also increases in the winter. During this time of financial stress, scams and predatory lenders target low-income people with quick solutions. Further, around the holidays, domestic violence often increases.

AppalReD Legal Aid can make a big difference for families facing challenges during winter. We can help you work with your utility company or landlord to solve utility or housing problems. We can dispute consumer fraud. We can go to court with you for a protection order.

AppalReD Legal Aid's Disaster Legal Services team has some tips to help keep you safe and warm.
